DUBLIN, July 16.

LAST Monday James Rinkle of Butter-Lane, Broom-maker, aged 90, was married to Sarah Moranci of the ſame Lane, aged 85; the Ceremony was performed at the Houſe of Mr. Labofiere the Aſtrologer, who foretold that they ſhould have a Son born to them on the 11th Day of March next. On Tueſday Night they had a very elegant Entertainment, at which time they lodg'd the Fortune the Woman brought which was 6 l. 4 s. 1 d. in the Hands of Truſtees, for the Uſe of their firſt born Son, who is not to enjoy it till he comes to the Age of 21, at which Time it is to be delivered to him, with Intereſt.

Extract of a Letter from Paris dated July 20.

De Montigny was beheaded laſt Monday; and the Executioner when he ſtruck off his Head, received all that Applauſe from the Spectators, which the beſt Actors meet with on the Stage from their Andience. His Crime was this: An honeſt ſubſtantial Tradeſman and his Wife returning Home one Night from a Friend's where they had ſupped, were met by Montigny in his Exempt's Cloaths; Montigny immediately laid one Hand on her Breaſts, and the other on her Belly; the Husband civilly expoſtulated with him for committing ſuch a Piece of Rudeneſs; but the Exempt quickly ſilenc'd him with a Thruſt thro' the Body which laid him dead on the Spot. The Woman, handſome, young and lively, ſeiz'd the Aſſaſin by the Arm, called to the Watch, who immediately came to her Cry, and, that they might not let him eſcape, went her ſelf along with him to the Chatelet. When ſhe ſaw him well ſecured, away ſhe poſted at that Time of Night to the King, to demand Juſtice of the King himſelf, becauſe ſhe apprehended that one of the Secretaries of State, and the Lieutenant of the Police, would obtain his Pardon, as they had done before for other Murders he had formerly committed: In ſhort, he was tried and condemned the 6th Inſtant at the Chatelet, from whence he appealed to the Parliament; there he was likewiſe condemned laſt Saturday, and beheaded the Monday following: for in no Tribunal in France is Juſtice ſo unbias'd by Solicitations as in the Parliament of Paris, eſpecially ſince one Man has quitted it. The Widow of the murder'd Perſon hearing a Report, that ſhould a Duke of Anjou be born while Montigny was on the Scaffold, that Aſſaſſin would be pardon'd, ſhe hired a Window juſt over it, where ſhe waited with two loaded Piſtols to ſhoot him, in caſe of ſuch an Event: For this ſhe is eſteemed a Heroine.

PARIS, July 27. In my laſt I gave you an Account of the Execution of one of M. Herault's Exempts, named Montigny, for the Murder of an honeſt Tradeſman and Burgher of Paris; but I ſhould have told you that the Crowd was ſo extraordinary upon that Occaſion, that the Houſe-keepers about the Place of Execution lett their Windows at the moſt extravagant Price ever known here; thoſe oppoſite the Scaffold were let for ten Louis-d'Ors each ſingle Window: So ardent a Deſire had all Ranks of People to ſee one of their Oppreſſors receive exemplary Puniſhment, and Terror thereby ſtruck in the reſt. This in ſome meaſure ſhews the Averſion we have here to Slavery, and how ready we could be to throw off the Yoke, had we but a fair Opportunity; but alas; what can we do in a Time of Peace, and, againſt an Army of 300,000 Men, but ſigh after our Liberty? By this Execution the Cardinal has got a great deal of Honour: Solicitations were not wanting to ſave Montigny, but his Eminency was inflexible; and the more ſo, becauſe the Widow of the murdered Perſon rejected, with the utmoſt Rage and Diſdain, all the great and advantageous Propoſals made to her to drop the Proſecution. Tho' left a Widow with four Children, and with Child of the Fifth, ſhe ſcorn'd to ſell her Husband's Blood.

LONDON, Sept. 15. It's here confidently reported, that when Sir Thomas Geraldino the Spaniſh Agent put in the ſecond Memorial which was touch'd in ſtronger Terms than the firſt, and particularly excepts againſt Mr. Oglethorpe's going to Georgia; the King call'd a Council, and communicated ſaid Memorial, and deſired their Advice, upon which there was a long Silence, but at laſt the Duke of Argyle ſtood up and ſaid that it was his Opinion the Memorial ſhould be anſwered, but not in a common Way: That His Majeſty ſhould ſend with it 60 Men of War of the Line to Spain, upon which His Majeſty reply'd, Well done my General, you have given your Advice agreeable to my Sentiments.

From the London Magazine for October.

From the Imperial Armies in Hungary, we have the following Accounts: That about the Beginning of September laſt, the Turks having aſſembled a conſiderable Army in Moldavia and Wallachia, General Ghilani, chief Commander of the Imperial Troops in thoſe Provinces, found himſelf under a Neceſſity of abandoning the Poſts he had poſſeſſed in them, and retiring towards Tranſylvania. In his Retreat, the Turks came up with his rear Guard and attack'd it; but were ſo warmly receiv'd, that they were ſoon obliged to retire in Confuſion, leaving a great Number dead upon the Spot, and about 30 Priſoners.

On the other Hand, the German Army under Count Seckendorff having inveſted Uſitza on Sept. 21. carried on the Attack with ſuch Vigour, that the Garriſon were obliged to ſurrender on Octob. 2. having obtained the ſame Terms of Capitulation, that were granted to the Garriſon of Nizza.

The Operations of the Compaign between the Muſcovites and Turks being over, Count Munich, with the Body of the Army under his Command, retired towards the Ukraine, where they are to take up their Winter Quarters, and was expected to arrive at Perelowna, Octob 1. laſt. And General Lacy, with the Army under his Command, having retired out of the Crim, as mentioned in our laſt, arrived Sept. 14. at Bachuths; from whence it ſeems not very poſſible, there can be any Truth in the Story we had lately from from France, of his having been defeated and taken Priſoner by the Turks.

The Muſcovites are making great Preparations for a vigorous and active Campaign next Summer; for which purpoſe they have reſolved to raiſe 4,000 Men additional Troops which they purpoſe to do by taking one out of every 125 Men fit for Service in that Empire; from whence we may compute, that notwithſtanding the vaſt Extent of that Empire, almoſt equal to the reſt of Europe, they reckon in it but 500,000 Men fit to bear Arms: But the moſt diverting Part of this Reſolution is, that even their Prieſts and Monks are not to be excepted; for out of every 125 Prieſts and Monks, one of them muſt take up the Weapons of the Fleſh, in order to fight againſt the Enemies of Chriſtianity; and 'tis probable they may do more Service in this Way againſt the Turks, than they ever did in their ſpiritual Warfare againſt the Devil. However, it muſt be granted, that is a dangerous Precedent for the Prieſts in all Countries; for as great Numbers of able-bodied Recruits might be raiſed from among the Clergy of almoſt every Country, it is to be feared this Precedent may ſome Time or other be followed by other Nations.

LONDON, Nov. 3. From Fontainbleau, that the Dauphin, as he was going a Hunting, met a Man which ſome Archers were carrying to Priſon, he ſtopt him to know the Cauſe; the Priſoner told him, that he was an Inhabitant of the Village of Pont Thiery; that he had been obliged againſt his Will to be a Collector of the Taxes, and his Poverty had inticed him to make Uſe of ſome of the Money, which he was unable to make good, and for that Reaſon they were carrying him to Priſon: The Dauphin ſaid, this was by no Means a ſufficient Cauſe to impriſon a poor Man, and ordered him to be ſet at Liberty, at the ſame Time giving him all the Money he had about him.

An Extract of a private Letter from Geneva, dated Octob. 25.

The Conferences for accommodating the Affairs of this Republick continue with Succeſs, between the Count de Lautrec, the Repreſentatives of Zurich and Berne, and the Members of the different Councils. The Magiſtrates having determined to give this Lord a Guard of 60 Men, which they intended to new cloathe, ſome of the Members of the Council went to offer it him, but he refuſed it in the moſt polite Manner, ſaying, Gentlemen, I am here amongſt the Friends of the King my Maſter, therefore what need have I of Guards ſeeing I have no Enemies to be afraid of? The Count lodges in one of the fineſt Houſes in the City, contiguous to that in which the Repreſentatives of Zurich and Berne live. There is a Communication between theſe two Houſes, that the Mediating Miniſters may the more conveniently confer whenever they ſhall think proper.

By Letters from Paris we hear, that there is ſomething very extraordinary on the Carpet at that Court, Expreſſes daily going or coming, to and from ſeveral Courts, particularly thoſe in Germany, which occaſions various Speculations among the Politicians there.

By a Mail that came in Yeſterday from France, with Letters dated laſt Saturday, there's Advice from Italy of the Death of Don Felix Cornejo, the Spaniſh Envoy Extraordinary at Genoa, of an Apoplexy; and alſo of the Death of the Engliſh Conſul there, after a long Fit of Sickneſs, They add, moreover, that the Duke of Modena is dead, in the 82d Year of his Age.

Some Letters from Vienna ſay, that Count de Khevenhuller is ſo indiſpoſed at Belgrade, that he has deſired the Emperor to excuſe him from further Service in the Field, and to let him officiate in the Poſt which his Majeſty lately conferred on him, of Vice Preſident of the Council of War. They mention a Report alſo, that the Count de Seckendorff is ſo ill in his Camp at Sabaſch, that his Life is in Danger. Complaints arrive daily at Vienna of the Sickneſs that ſpreads in the Army for want of Proviſions; and of the Scarcity of Money, which is ſuch, that tho' the Garriſon of Niſſa has not above a Fortnights Stock of Proviſions, the Imperial Commiſſaries have not wherewithal to purchaſe more. The Letters add, that the Prince of Bevern, and Count Charles Palfi, are both returned from the Army, ſhaking with a Quartan Ague. There are ſome Advices, nevertheleſs, that Zwornick is beſieged by 18,000 Germans: but they hardly deſerve Credit, before the Arrival of the Mail, which may be expected to-morrow from Holland.

A few Days paſt, a Dutch Skipper going on Shore at Iron Gate near the Tower, from on board his Ship, was obſerved by one of the Tideſmen, William James, to be over-anxious about a Loaf of brown Bread, which gave the Officer ſome Suſpicion, and occaſioned him to ſtop him; and upon examining the Loaf, he found a Box cruſted over, wherein were concealed a parcel of curious Handkerchiefs. This is an old Trick of the Smugglers, for reviving whereof Mynheer has paid dear.

On Tueſday there was a Letter in Town, which has the following remarkable Account from York, that one Day laſt Week nine Priſoners, who were confined in the ſtrong Room in the Caſtle of that City, had concerted (as they thought) a Method of eſcaping thence, to which purpoſe they found Means to get ſome Inſtruments with which they filed off their Irons, and at Night ſet fire to ſome Straw, which they lay on, in order to burn the Door of the ſaid Room; but the Attempt deſtroyed them, for the Smoak not having any Vent, ſuffocated them all, and they were found dead next Morning, lying cloſe to each other.

Novem. 26. 'We had a current Report here a few Days 'ago, as if Georgia had actually been taken, but the 'Truth is out now, it ſeems one Savy a Carolinian 'had gone from South-Carolina to the Havannah, offering 'the Spaniards a Plan how they might ſurprize and take 'Georgia, which they hearkened to, and were prepa-'ring to execute, but he thought they went on ſo ſlowly, 'that he went to the Court of Madrid, to haſten the Ex-'ecution, where meeting with Neglect, he repair'd to the 'Court of France, and there alſo Meeting with the ſame 'Reception, he went to Lisbon, and turning the Tables, 'he told the Britiſh Miniſter there, that he had found a 'Scheme to baffle the Spaniards Intention in taking of 'Georgia. Lord Tyrawly gave a Hearing, but amus'd him 'till he wrote ſome Letters to the Government, and then 'order'd him directly on board the Packet, with Orders 'not only to ſail immediately, but alſo not to ſuffer him 'to go over board till the Government had ſignified their 'Pleaſure concerning him, and now he is confin'd in the 'Caſtle of Falmouth, and I think merits the Fate of a 'Traytor.

CHARLES-TOWN, Nov. 17. This Week Capt. John Buſley arrived here from the Bay of Honduras in the Sloop the Three Friends belonging to Boſton, by whom we have Information, that the Spaniards continue to take all the Engliſh Veſſels they can make themſelves Maſter of in the Bay. That on the 12th of Auguſt laſt they took a Sloop from Jamaica, John Thomas, Owner, and on the 14th a Sloop belonging to Charleſtown, Maxey Dowſe, Commander, and two Crafts of the ſaid Capt. Buſley with 26 Tons of Wood, they took alſo one William Reeves, living in the Bay with two of his Negroes. At that time Capt. Stephen Eaſtwick came in a Scooner from Jamaica long ſide of Capt. Dowſe's Sloop in which were then 18 Spaniards, one of them holding in one Hand a Piſtol and with the other was throwing a Rope to him, Capt. Eaſtwick ſheer'd off, and 8 of the Spaniards went in a Pettiauger after him, but Capt. Eaſtwick's Men firing ſmartly upon them kill'd three, the other 5 turn'd back to the Sloop and took the reſt of their Men in and went away, whereby Capt. Dowſe ſav'd his Sloop.

They took likewiſe two Dutch Sloops near Muſchetto-Shore full loaden with Logwood.

The following Engliſh Veſſels were in the Bay when the ſaid Capt. Buſley came out.

Dec. 29. On Tueſday laſt, being St. John's Day, all the Members of the ancient and honourable Society of Free and Accepted Maſons, in this Place met at Mr. Seaman's, Maſter of Solomon's Lodge, from whence they proceeded all properly cloath'd, under the Sound of French-Horns, to wait on John Graeme, Eſq; Provincial Grand-Maſter, at his Houſe

Houſe in Broad Street, where they were received by all the Members of the Grand Lodge. After a ſhort Stay there, they all went in Proceſſion, and with the Enſigns of their Order, into the Court-Room at Mr. Charles Shepheard's Houſe, making a very grand Show there to a numerous Audience of Ladies and Gentlemen, who were admitted by Tickets; the Grand Maſter made a very elegant Speech in Praiſe of Maſonry, which, we hear, was univerſally applauded. Then the Grand Lodge withdrew in order to proceed to the Election of a Grand Maſter for the enſuing Year, when James Græme, Eſq; was unanimouſly rechoſen Grand Maſter, who appointed James Wright, Eſq; D. G. M. Maurice Lewis, Eſq; S. G. W. John Crookſhanks, Eſq; J. G. W. James Michie, Eſq; G. T. and James Gordon, Eſq; G. S.

The ſame Day Mr. James Crockatt, was unanimouſly choſen Maſter of Solomon's Lodge.

New-York, Jan. 24. Laſt Saturday Mr. David Provooſt, jun. Maſter of the Lodge of the Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Maſons in this Place, gave an elegant Entertainment to the Fraternity, at the Black Horſe, and being about to depart this Province, at a Lodge held that Evening, deſired Leave to reſign his Office, and had the Honour to receive the Thanks of the whole Society, for his true and faithful Diſcharge of the great Truſt they had repoſed in him, and their hearty Wiſhes for his ſafe and Proſperous Voyage, and ſpeedy Return; Then Matthew Norris Eſq; ſenior Warden, was unanimouſly choſen Maſter, and being inſtalled and admitted into that Office, with the uſual Solemnity, He was pleaſed to chooſe and appoint John Saint, Eſq; who was junior Warden, to be ſenior Warden, and Mr. Henry Holt to be junior Warden. And as a further Mark of their Unanimity and Concord, the Lodge waited on their New Maſter to his Home, in a well regulated and decent Proceſſion.

PHILADELPHIA.

Extract of a Letter from Malaga, Nov 27. N. S.

"The Baſhaw of Tangier having in his Caſtle near 100 Chriſtian Slaves of ſeveral Nations, amongſt whom were ſeveral Engliſh, taken under their Enemies Colours, 72 of them concerted Meaſures for their Eſcape and Liberty, which, with its Conſequences is as follows, viz.

After the laborious Drudgery of the Day, ſuch as carrying Stones and Mortar for the Baſhaw's Works, the Slaves are put in Irons for the Night, with certain Guards over them, which Guards are ſometimes brib'd not to put them in Irons, which was the Ground-Work on which they laid the Baſis of their intended Eſcape; for on the 4th Inſt. having brib'd the Guards as uſual, not to confine them that Night, they in the Dead of the Night, ſeized their Guards, ty'd and gagg'd them, and made their Eſcape over the Caſtle Walls, which are but in indifferent Repair, and launch'd a Mooriſh Boat, intending to go to Gibraltar; but the Boat being deeply laden with ſuch a Number, and leaky, they were fruſtrated in their Deſign of going to Gibraltar; and therefore unanimouſly agreed to go on Board a Brigantine, then lying in the Bay, the Maſter of which was one Burne, an Iriſhman; but the Watch on Board, perceiving a Boat with ſuch a Number of Hands coming on Board, immediately call'd the Captain and the reſt of the People, upon which they took to their Small-Arms; the Captain calling to the Boat to keep off, but the Boat being by this time almoſt ſinking, they ſtill rowed towards the Veſſel. Two or three of the Slaves, with whom the Captain had been converſant aſhore, imploring him to take them aboard, and reſcue them from the moſt painful and ignominious Slavery, they had labour'd under for many Years, telling him they had 900 Dollars Caſh amongſt them, which they would give him (which would have been as much again as his Freight came to, which he had not then received from his Mooriſh Freighters) ſaying if he had any thing to fear from ſuch a Number coming aboard, they would come one by one, and he might tye them, or otherwiſe diſpoſe of them, as he ſhould think proper, asking him, withal, if it was reaſonable for any one to think they had a Deſign of prejudicing the Man in whom all their Hopes of Liberty centered; and urged ſeveral moſt moving Arguments to the ſame Purpoſe, but the Brute, deaf to their Prayers, returned for Anſwer a Volley of Small-Arms, killed 6 and wounded many others, which put them into ſuch Confuſion, that the Boat overſat or ſunk with them, and obliged them that could not ſwim to catch hold of his Chains or other Ropes hanging over board, begging him to ſave their Lives, if not their Liberty; but the inhuman Wretch cut their Arms off as they hung by his Sides, and mangled many of them in the moſt barbarous Manner; ſeveral likewiſe, who were on his Cables begging his Aſſiſtance, were cut to Pieces; and becauſe he could not come at them all, he cut the Cable, ſo that ſeveral were drowned. His Firing aforeſaid, alarm'd the Town, and ſeveral Mooriſh Boats came off and took up near 50 of them (otherwiſe all muſt have periſh'd) and carried them aſhore, where you may judge of their Uſage after an Attempt of that Kind. Thus was a well concerted Scheme fruſtrated by this inhuman Villain, who had not Compaſſion enough to give them their Liberty or even Lives, nor Capacity of reflecting on the great Reward he would have received from thoſe Princes to whom the Slaves were born Subjects."
